Sean Musselman began his ballet training at the age of thirteen in St. Petersburg Florida.

At the age of fifteen Musselman was awarded a full Ford Foundation Scholarship to George Balanchine's prestigious School of American Ballet in New York City. Musselman studied there for four years where he had the rare opportunity to work closely with the legends of the ballet world to include George Balanchine, Jerome Robbins of West Side Story fame, Russian superstars Mikhail Baryshnikov, and Rudolph Nureyev. During that time Musselman was a guest Artist with The Boston Ballet, The New York City Opera Ballet, and as a student with The New York City Ballet.

Mr. Musselman was a member of the Eglevsky Ballet under the direction of Edward Villella, The Milwaukee Ballet under the direction of Ted Kivit, The Chicago City Ballet and The Chicago Lyric Opera Ballet under American Iconic Ballerina Maria Tallchief, and the Pacific Northwest Ballet under the direction of Kent and Franca Russel.
